

engcon and TM Benne in strategic partnership to strengthen presence in the Italian market

engcon, the world's leading manufacturer of tiltrotators, is entering into a strategic partnership with the Italian company TM Benne. The collaboration means that TM Benne will market and sell engcon's products in the Italian market.

TM Benne specializes in the manufacturing of buckets and couplers and has a strong local presence combined with high technical expertise. Their know-how makes them an important strategic partner for engcon in the Italian market. Through this partnership, engcon strengthens its presence in the country and meets the growing demand for efficient and sustainable solutions in the construction and earth-moving industry.

"We look forward to starting this collaboration with TM Benne. Their experience and strategic network make them an ideal partner for our expansion in Italy and align perfectly with our vision to change the world of digging", says Krister Blomgren, CEO of engcon.

"We are very pleased with the partnership with engcon. Interest in the tiltrotator in Italy is growing, and together we can create conditions for a strong development in the Italian market", says Marco Franchi, CEO of TM Benne.

The launch of engcon's products in Italy via TM Benne will begin in the fourth quarter of 2025.
